

SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 29, 18 5

A NEGRO ex-member of Congress from South Carolina, named Murray, made a speech to an audience of his r:ce in one of their churches in Washington last right, in which he denounced the U. S. Court of Appeals, presided over by Chief Justice Fuller of the Supreme Court of the United States, for his recent reversal of Judge Goff's famous opinion that the U. S. government has the power to interfere with State elections, and spoke of the white people of South Carolina as traitors and rebels. Such talk as this by negroes in Washington, and the manner in which negroes are behaving under the social equality law in New York, are not calculated to assuage natural race animosity either in the South or North, and show that it is as impossible for the negro to improve his understanding as it is for him to change his skin. In any conflict that may arise between the negroes and the white peo ple of this country, the former, being the weaker, are bound to suffer, whether right, or, as in the case referred to, wrong, for blood is thicker than water. But it seems utterly impossible for them to learn this easy and common sense lesson.

THE FOREIGN syndicate that were allowed to buy the whole amount of the lust issue of government bonds at 1043 though those bonds are now selling at 124, and what paid for the most of them with Americae, though they promised to do with foreign gold, are now talking about manipulating the market as to raise the rate of exchange, and put a premium on gold and thereby not only increase the value of their bonds, the interest as well as the principal of which must be paid with gold, but also drain the drain the Treasury of its gold supply. No wonder this talk is listened to with great anxiety and alarm by business men, for should the security fer the paper and silver currency of the country be withdrawn, there would be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth of teeth. Whether the danger referred to be real or only imaginary, there is no doubt of the fact that a wise government would soon remove the condition by which it could be subject to it again.

ONE or the negro toughs of Wash ington who assaulted and nearly killed a policeman in that city two or three days ago while in the discharge of his duty has been captured. If the whip ping post were in operation in Washington now, as it used to be, there would be no repetition of this brutal outrage, but as it is not, and as imprisonment is rather an incentive, than a deterrent to the commission of similar offenses by negroes, there will prob ably be many more of them, and the policemen of Washington for self-preservation, will have to practice quick

As PREVIOUSLY stated in the GA-ZETTE'S Washington correspondence prosecutions under the famous Edmunds' act have been practically suspended in Washington. At Salt Lake they will continue as usual. The author of the law said "he had no idea it would ever be enforced in Washington," and, lereafter, it will not be The wicked Mormons must be punish ed for doing what good Washingtonians may do with impunity. And such is law under a free and equal government !

THE REPUBLICAN newspapers of no city in the country are more denunciatory of alleged and imaginary election frauds than those of Philadelphia, and yet it has just been proved in the courts of that city that republican election officers there could give those in any Southern city or county five in the game and still beat them. Philadelphia lawyers used to be the impersonation of "smartness," but their glory has been eclipsed by the republican election officers of that brotherly love city.

FROM PRESENT indications it seems that Senator Quay has as firm a hold upon the strong republican organization of Pennsylvania as ex-Senator Mahone has upon the weak one in uine western cyclone had come and we Virginia. There is this difference, however, between them, Senator Quay addstrength to the Pennsylvania republicans, while ex-Senator Mahone takes from those of Virginia even the little strength they have.

THE LATE LEWIS MCKENZIE. Presbyterian Church for over sixty

As stated in the GAZETTE, Mr. Lewis McKenzie died at his rooms in the Alexandria House yesterday afternoon, too late for more than a simple announcement of his decease. The prom- boarded and roomed at the Alexandria inence of Mr. McKenzie, he having been a central figure in this community for half a century, of course entitles him to a more extended notice, as he was a man of some reputation in Vir-rinis and was somewhat known nation-The deceased was born in Alexandria in 1810, and was consequently 85 years old. He was the son of Capt. James McKenzie, well and favorably known here at the beginning of the pres-ent century. It is said that Captain McKenzie's nuptials were celebrated aboard of the ship he com-manded while she lay at anchor in the Potomac off this port. At an early age the subject of this notice, together with the late Benjamin H. Lambert, then also a young man, entered the house of Fowle & Daingerfield, one of the principal shipping and commission firms of Alex andris at that time, where he and Mr. Lambert acted as clerks until about the year 1830, when these gentlemen formed a partnership and the result was the establishment of the house of Lambert & McKenzie, which for years prosecuted a lucrative business. In 1853 the firm was dissolved by mutual consent, and Mr. McKenzie established a separative of the separative of arate business in a new store on Union street, where he prospered and finally became one of Alexandria's leading merchants, as well as a prominent and useful citizen. At the close of the war, though he still carried on business at the old stand, his energies were diverted to other avocations and his trade lagged with the depression of the times until twelve or fifteen years ago when he bade adieu to a commercial life. There have been few Alexandrians whose fortunes, political and otherwise. waxed and waned more than Mr. Mc-Kenzie's. Before the war, energetic and public spirited, he commanded the respect of friend and foe, and was foremost in nearly all of the most importtant enterprises conceived for the aggrandisement of his native city. He was the moving power in the building of the Alexandria, Loudour and Hampshire (now W. & O.) R. R., and was for many years president of that corporation. He was also presi-dent of the First National Bank for a long time. Mr. McKenzie held during his life many positions of public trust, among them member of the Legislaon many occasions he proved himself a friend in need to our people in recom-mending and vouching for them to the military authorities or in extricating them from troubles into which they were occasionally plunged during those dark and dismal days when bayonet rule prevailed. Mr. McKenzie had for seat in the House of Representatives in 1865. The late Gilbert S. Minor and the late Robert Y. Conrad were also contestants for the honor of representing what was then known as the Seventh Virginia district in the halls of Congress, and the latter was elected, though he was not allowed to take his seat. In the year 1869, however, a chance was afforded Mr. McKenzie of reaching the pinnacle of his ambition. The late Mr. B. H. Shackelford, of Fauquier county, had received the nomination from the democrats of this district for Congress, but the State still being out of the union and he being unable to subscribe to the iron-clad oath then inant in Congress, would have seated the late Charles Whittlesey, the republican candidate. It was therefore deemed prudent by the more conservative of the democratic party to "pick up" what was then termed a "mild union man"-one native and to the manner born, who could con-scientiously take the prescribed oath and at the same time defended the in-
